With a better understanding of why battered women do not escape their batterers, hopefully we can learn to stop blaming the victim. Even today, victims encounter some "doctors [who] prescribe Valium for coping, ministers [who] recommend more accommodating behaviors of the victim, and therapists [who] advise better communication with the abuser."

Why Battered Women Won't Always Leave Their Batterers ...

Domestic abuse is not so much about a "loss of control" as it is about total control. Ironically, many batterers do not see themselves as perpetrators, but as victims. This reasoning is common among batterers and many have elaborate denial systems designed to justify or excuse their actions.

Why Domestic Abusers Commit Abuse

Many batterers issue one or more of these threats in an effort to coerce the victim not to leave or to come back. Given the behavior of the batterer during the relationship, there is no reason for a battered woman to doubt that he at least will try to make good on these promises.
