When I started writing my new book, God and the Gay Christian, I was well aware that Christians who oppose same-sex marriage in the church have long used the Bible to defend their point of view.

10 Reasons God Loves Gay Christians | Time

That being said, “God and the Gay Christian” is a sincere and genuine work of poor scholarship, reasoning, and argumentation. There are some good points he makes along the way (most notably the need for understanding historical context and being willing to reexamine long-held beliefs in the light of new evidence), ...

This is a short book, which seeks to provide a good response to Matthew Vine's popular book “God and the Gay Christian”. The book, edited by Mohler, includes contributions from different scholars and pastors, and provides a critique of Vines' book from biblical, theological, and historical perspectives.

God and the Gay Christian?: A Response to Matthew Vines by ...

God loves them and us and wants everyone to understand their true identities not as being “gay” or “straight,” but as being sons and daughters of the Most High. Finally, when interpreting these passages it’s important to have the Bible’s whole context in mind and that’s why the affirmation of male-female sexual pairing in both Genesis 2 and Matthew 19 cannot be ignored.

Over the next few weeks, on Wednesdays, we will be discussing Matthew Vines’ book, God and the Gay Christian: The Biblical Case in Support of Same-Sex Relationships. I chose this particular book because I think it provides the most accessible and personal introduction to the biblical and historical arguments in support of same-sex relationships, and because Matthew is a theologically ...

“God and the Gay Christian” Discussion, Week 1

By imposing the same commands in our current context, the church is mandating celibacy for all gay Christians and forbidding an avenue for them to sanctify their sexuality in the context of a Christian marriage, causing tremendous damage that results in the “bad fruit” of isolation and self-hatred for gay men and women made in the image of God.
